Time Dedicated to the Project

As of writing this, I have spent about 5 hours on the project this week. I had a personal matter come up that took up some of my time so I wasn't able to get as much done as I had planned on doing. Over the weekend, I hope to spend another 3-5 hours working on this week's task.

Contribution to Project Development Process

This week I was implementing the user information page where the user can edit their personal information like their name, their organization's name, and their password. One of the challenges I am coming up against with this aspect is how the user's information will be stored and how I need to prepare this information to be sent to the back end. I was also editing the homepage and testing new additions to it. As I implement more pages, the homepage will need to be able to route to these pages in a way that makes sense so I've been keeping that in mind while implanting these pages.

I also got started on the group's documentation assignment. I set up the document and started filling in what I could on my own.

Demonstration of Applied Knowledge

This week I discussed with my team what information needed to be stored for my user page but I realized that I will need more information on how the user information will be stored because the page, I'm working on needs to get information from the database and store it. So, this week's research will involve talking to my group members and further studying the backend components to make sure my page communicates with it effectively.

Reflection

This week was strange for me with how things turned out. The beginning of my week I was unable to work on school as much as I normally do so I will end up doing most of my work after this reflection is due. I hope to get the user information page done by the end of the week.
